Le développement de l'enfant vu par la psychanalyse aux Etats-Unis et en France

CHILD DEVELOPMENT: AMERICAN vs FRENCH PSYCHOANALYTIC VIEWS

Université Paris Diderot, Halle aux Farines,
10 rue Françoise Dolto, 75013 Paris (Amphi Buffon)
Friday and Saturday 23-24 Mai, 2014

Co-organized by

Professeur Sophie de Mijolla-Mellor

Association Internationale Interactions de la Psychanalyse (www.a2ip.org)
CRPMS – Université Paris Diderot 7, France

Professor Jerome S Blackman

American College of Psychoanalysts, USA (www.acopsa.org)

Can psychoanalytically-informed counseling of parents prevent their children from developing serious mental disturbances? How can early childhood autism be treated? What happens to the identity of children raised during wartime? And how can the mind transform childhood trauma into creativity?

Although research on the mental development of children has been progressing for over 100 years, much scientific knowledge has been submerged in a sea of pop-psychology literature, misinformation, and social polemics. This conference, unique in its structure, brings to Paris psychoanalytic researchers from the United States, who have studied these questions over the past 50 years and proposed important modifications regarding major parameters in child development. Their approach, based on their practices and inspired by authors like M. Mahler, H. Kohut, D.W. Winnicott and A. Freud, among others, will be discussed by French psychoanalysts experienced in the same fields, and open dialogue will be encouraged with attendees.
